CIVIL CONSTRUCTION- INDIGENOUS ENGAGEMENT- PROJECT MANAGEMENT

About Lorrex Contracting

Lorrex Contracting Pty Ltd (Lorrex) is a leading Indigenous-owned civil and mining services provider operating within the East Pilbara region of Western Australia. We deliver specialised contracting solutions with a distinct capability to maximise local Indigenous engagement and content.

Lorrex is equally owned by Lorrex Civil and Mining Pty Ltd and iContracting Pty Ltd—a premier Indigenous civil maintenance, construction, and mining services contractor.

Established in 2012, Lorrex Civil and Mining is 100% owned by local Indigenous Traditional Owners, Lorraine and Rex Parker, who hold deep connections to Banyjima and Nyiyaparli Country. Strategically based at the Youngaleena Community within Karijini National Park, the company has developed robust core capabilities to execute localised project opportunities successfully. This foundation ensures long-term operational sustainability and has built a proven track record of performance.

iContracting complements this partnership by focusing on capacity building within Indigenous communities, establishing commercial ventures that empower local populations to capitalise on regional resource projects.

Lorrex Contracting is dedicated to nurturing existing partnerships while cultivating new client, subcontractor, and employee relationships. Our highly experienced leadership team possesses extensive market knowledge and leverages a trusted, well-established network of suppliers and subcontractors to deliver exceptional project outcomes.

Past Projects

Lorrex Contracting is committed to enhancing the operational capabilities of Pilbara Indigenous communities. By leveraging our established industry expertise, we enable local populations to capitalise fully on regional commercial opportunities. Our proven track record includes the successful execution and ongoing delivery of major resource sector projects:

- BHP South Flank: Stockyards Civil Works
- RTIO Gudai-Darri Mine: Village Access Road Construction
- RTIO Gudai-Darri Mine: Incremental Tonnes Load and Haul Project
- BHP (Various Locations): Long-term stemming operations
- Hancock Iron Ore: Stemming operations

Through strategic alliances with other Traditional Owner partners, including Muntulgura Guruma, Lorrex accesses a highly skilled workforce and an extensive, modern fleet of earthmoving machinery and vehicles. By combining this robust technical capacity with our deep on-the-ground knowledge and community networks, we provide clients with an efficient, low-risk contracting service that maximises local Indigenous engagement.

Our Workforce & Cultural Leadership

Lorrex Contracting is led by a management team with extensive operational experience across Western Australia's Pilbara region and a proven record of delivering professional services to the resources sector. This deep localised knowledge provides a distinct commercial advantage, ensuring all operations are conducted in a highly respectful, culturally aligned manner that focuses on empowering and equipping personnel for long-term retention.

We recognise that our personnel are our premier asset. To foster a stable, committed, and high-performing workforce, we provide structured career progression pathways, comprehensive technical training, and culturally appropriate support frameworks.

Lorrex utilises a tailored training, development, and mentoring program designed to support our employees while consistently meeting our clients' high standards. By continuously upskilling our team, we maintain a highly adaptive, progressive workforce capable of scaling with project demands. As an equal opportunity employer, Lorrex actively implements positive recruitment initiatives to maximise Indigenous participation and representation across all operational and leadership tiers.

Integrated Management Systems & Governance

Lorrex Contracting operates under an Integrated Management System (IMS) certified to international ISO standards for occupational health and safety management, environmental management and quality management. Adherence to these rigorous global frameworks ensures all operational activities are executed in a systematic, controlled, and repeatable manner. We maintain strict compliance protocols to verify that all on-site personnel and subcontractors hold the precise qualifications and technical competencies required for risk-mitigated delivery.

To safeguard project performance and maintain alignment with client expectations, Lorrex embeds predetermined Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) across every engagement. These benchmarks are strictly monitored and assessed through regular governance intervals over the project lifecycle. By standardising this rigorous framework at every site, we ensure our foundational principles of operational excellence and continuous improvement are consistently upheld.

Directors

Rex Parker – Director

Rex Parker is a respected Banyjima Elder with lifelong ties to the Pilbara region, born to a Nyiyaparli mother and a Banyjima father. He commenced his career in the pastoral sector at Nanutarra Station before transitioning into heavy industrial contracting. Rex has built an extensive career working with premier Tier-1 contracting and mining companies, including Henry Walker Eltin, Macmahon, and Rio Tinto (Paraburdoo). In 2012, he founded Lorrex Civil & Mining, successfully delivering major work packages for Fortescue (FMG) at the Solomon Hub. Rex continues to reside on his traditional homelands at the Youngaleena Community on Banyjima Country, providing the business with deep cultural governance and local community alignment.

Clinton Wolf – Director

Clinton Wolf is a highly accomplished corporate executive with extensive expertise spanning civil construction, commercial finance, and native title law. He was the founder and former Chairman of the Indigenous Construction Resource Group (ICRG) and previously served as a Director at Azure Capital, one of Australia's leading corporate advisory firms. A former AFL athlete, Clinton's executive leadership experience includes roles as CEO of the Pilbara Native Title Service and CEO of the Yamatji Land and Sea Council. Throughout his career, he has provided strategic counsel to major mining and exploration entities, including Rio Tinto, Atlas Iron, Consolidated Minerals, Kimberley Diamonds, Sons of Gwalia, and Aquila Resources.
